Home Rule—and a Strategic Retreat

APPROVAL by the State Welfare Board of 30 county welfare directors who were not on the civil service list of eligibles may become a major issue between the state and federal governments, according to yesterday's news dispatches.

Appointment of non-civil service people to the county posts was approved by the state board apparently on authority of a ruling by the attorney general that state civil service did not reach into the local government of counties.

The political expediency of waiving the civil service rule in this instance, is fairly obvious. There are a good many people who, frightened by the ruthless march of federal centralization, are resolved to hold onto such local government as they may.

This newspaper, we hardly need to add, is on their side. But the terms by which we can retain local government are definitely fixed. We have said so before, and we repeat now: Powers of local government will be retained only in proportion to the share of the cost of special services we are willing or able to pay.

Army's 4-Motor 'Flying Fortress' to Appear Sunday

PUBLIC IS INVITED

Army to Be Host at Shreveport Program Sunday Afternoon

Plans have been completed for holding the Fourth Annual Charity Air Demonstration at Barksdale Field on Sunday, November 21, from 1:30 p. m. to 5 p. m.

This annual event is looked forward to by the people of the Ark-La-Tex area as an extraordinary demonstration of military aviation technique, as well as a thrilling flying spectacle. To those who have had the good fortune to witness this event each year it affords a wonderful opportunity of observing the extremely rapid strides made in aviation engineering and airplane construction and the tactical changes required as a result. Airplanes that were the latest and most up to date in last year's demonstration will be old and obsolete this year.

One type of ship that will be of particular interest is the new A-18 Curtiss two-motored attack ship. This is the fastest two-motored airplane in the world, cruising well over 200 miles an hour and having a top

Barksdale Schedule
8:30 to 10 a. m.	Mass formation over cities in vicinity.
1:30 to 2:30 p. m.	Presentation of Trophies followed by Wing Review.
2:30 to 2:55 p. m.	18 pursuit plane formation and mass firing at ground target.
2:55 to 3 p. m.	Aerial Combat, two pursuit planes.
3 to 3:10 p. m.	Aerial Acrobatics, 3 pursuit planes.
3:20 p. m.	Take off of Attack group.
3:25 to 3:40 p. m.	Dropping of parachute bombs by A-18 airplanes.
3:40 p. m.	Bombing attack on ground target (100 lb. bombs).
3:45 p. m.	Bombing attack with fragmentation bombs.
3:50 p. m.	Machine gun attack on ground target.
3:55 to 4:05 p. m.	Pursuit demonstration in cutting streamers and burning balloons.
4:05 to 4:15 p. m.	Parachute jumping.
4:15 to 4:30 p. m.	Laying of smoke screen by three airplanes.

speed of slightly less than 200 miles per hour. It has so many gadgets in the cockpit that the pilot could get along very nicely with about six hands, four feet and a couple of tails to work them. Nine of these ships will be on exhibition demonstrating the latest in attack aviation maneuvers. Four machine guns in the nose of the ship pour forth a hail of fire of four thousand eight hundred rounds per minute and the bomb load could wreck a battleship.

Flying Fortress
Even this ship pales into insignificance along side the mighty flying fortress or super bomber. These are four-motored Boeing bombers capable of well over 200 miles per hour and of carrying a bomb load of two tons. An impressive example of the possibilities of modern military aviation was given by a squadron of these bombers on day last month. While the units stationed at Barksdale were busy engaged in South Texas and Louisiana defending the Gulf Coast against attack by an imaginary enemy, these bombers left Langley Field, on the Atlantic Coast of Virginia, flew to Barksdale Field, theoretically demolished it and returned to their Virginia base at such a high altitude

The whole scheme of public welfare work is a co-operative one, with state and federal governments participating in the cost, and the county government hardly at all. We assume that the purpose behind this organization—aiding the aged, the sick and the helpless—is one that meets with the approval of all citizens, and it is required, therefore, that the program go ahead.

Actually, then, we have only two alternatives. One, we can involve ourselves in a domestic battle between state and county authority—and the federal government may then cut off its funds, with the full likelihood that public opinion will eventually invite the federal government to take over the entire program and administer it directly from Washington, D. C.

The other alternative is the one that The Star has preached for several years. To centralize our local authority in such jointly-financed matters as welfare work, in the state capital. That would salvage part of local authority and at the same time would bulwark us against having all our authority drained off to distant Washington.

Any sensible citizen having to serve on a committee would infinitely prefer appearing in Little Rock than in Washington—common sense tells you that one citizen of Arkansas carries more weight in Little Rock than one citizen of America in Washington.

As a broad policy, The Star advocates rigid adherence to the idea of a state unit in all matters jointly financed by the federal government and local subdivisions.

Then, and then only, can we be sure of stopping the blue-printing federal specialists from invading local government on things bought and paid for with local taxes.

There is no separation of money and responsibility, whether in business or government—let us see to it, then, that we choose our position carefully on jointly-supported matters so that we shall not come to grief on what is entirely our own.

17,500 Out on New 'Sit-Down' Strike

Third in Three Days, This One May Prove Longer Affair

PONTIAC, Mich.—(AP)—The third General Motors corporation sitdown strike in three days threw 17,500 workers into idleness here Thursday.

The local plant of the Fisher Body company was held by strikers. Although two previous interruptions were short-lived, there were some indication that the present tie-up might continue longer.

The climatic temperature of Alaska varies from 60 degrees below zero in the winter to 90 degrees above zero in summer.

Red Cross Fund Is Nearing $500 Mark

England Asks Rural Sections to Make Reports at Once

A report of $42 Thursday brought the Hempstead County Red Cross roll total to $493.85.

County Chairman Wayne H. England appealed to township chairmen to make their reports at once in an effort to wind up the campaign.

Persons missed in the canvass may leave their donations at either Citizens National Bank or First National Bank.

Mr. England also announced that Miss Frances Snyder had been authorized to solicit donations.

The Rev. Bert Webb, chairman of the drive in the city, announced the appointment of Dr. C. M. Lewis and James Harris, negroes, to have charge of solicitation among the negroes of Hope.

All negroes wishing to donate to the Red Cross are asked to turn their contributions over to Dr. Lewis or Harris.

London Cuts Maritime Rate to Orient and Mediterranean

War risk rates on international maritime commerce—one barometer of war tension—were reduced sharply Thursday on cargoes for the Orient and the western Mediterranean.

The reduction, announced in London by British marine insurance underwriters, was believed due to three developments:

1. Transfer of Chinese-Japanese hostilities from the Shanghai area.
2. The apparent end of piracy which developed in the Mediterranean as an outgrowth of the Spanish civil war.
3. An easier political situation in Europe.

SHANGHAI, China.—(AP)—Japanese army spokesmen announced Thursday night that Japanese troops driving to break through China's "Hindenburg line" between Shanghai and Nanking had captured one gate of the walled city of Kashing, southern keystone of the line.

Both Chinese and Japanese and Japanese reported heavy fighting in the area around Kashing, 60 miles south of Shanghai and 30 miles south of Soochow, the main point of the Chinese defense.

Southern Senators Paralyze Upper House on Lynch Measure

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Near agreement in the senate agriculture committee on farm control legislation brought a promise Thursday of a break in the aimless debate which has dominated the special congressional session.

Senator Bailey, North Carolina Democrat, carried on the Southern filibuster against anti-lynching legislation in the senate. But Chairman Smith, South Carolina Democrat, told reporters that the "ever normal granary" farm bill—patterned after administration recommendations—would be ready Monday to displace the lynching measure.

Fulfillment of this prediction would bring before the special session one week after convening the first of the four-point program recommended by President Roosevelt. Farm, wage and hour, regional planning, and executive reorganization legislation.

"Looks like you'd oughta come in every week, young feller," he remarked. "Have a passel of it. More'n all the rest put together."

Bob smiled in acknowledgment, but his interest was centered on the arrival of mail.

Eight of the letters were answers to a long classified advertisement which he had mailed to New York newspapers a month ago. Of these one instantly excited him:

"Dear Dr. Barry:
You have advertised for a partner to explore the ancient cliff dwelling on your ranch. That sounds great! I think I am the partner you need. I will leave New York day after tomorrow, and so should reach Blanco Canyon, Arizona, by Tuesday, according to the schedule. I note your warning that we will be isolated in a wilderness, miles from any town. That won't matter. ## Reward for People Who Sweeten Life

THE last will and testament of the late William M. Carson contains a neat and painless little sermon for all of us.

Mr. Carson was a wealthy San Francisco business man who, when it came time for him to die, had neither chick nor child to leave his money to. He owned some $1,300,000 worth of this world's goods, and he didn't quite like the idea of handing it all in a lump to some impersonal philanthropic organization.

So when he sat down to make out his will he simply wrote the names of everybody who had been kind to him, everybody whose courtesy, efficiency or helpfulness had made his life a little pleasanter—and divided his bequests among all of them.

THE 34 people who worked for him all got bequests. The maids, janitors, bellhops, waiters and elevator boys at his hotel got bequests; so did the employees of the country club where he had played golf, people in the hospitals where he had been a patient, the church he attended, the university from which he had been graduated, and so on.

Altogether, more than 100 people were named in his will, for amounts varying from $500 to $10,000.

There is a sort of moving picture romanticism about this will, of course, and earnest thinkers will no doubt say that the money would have "done more good" if it had all gone to some worthy cause.

But there is a lot to be said for the idea of doing something to repay all the people who had helped to make life run more smoothly and happily.

For all of us, as we travel on toward the graves that await us, carry with us debts just like those which this millionaire paid in his will. We don't often stop to think about them, but they exist. It's a good idea to stop and tabulate them once in a while.

Life consists of an infinite number of small human contacts. A man may consider himself utterly friendless and alone—yet this ability to get his work done, to sleep well at night, to maintain a smooth temper, even to enjoy his meals properly, depends in no small measure on the people with whom he makes these contacts.

IMAGINE what a miserable day you would put in if, some morning, you should find all of these people falling down on their jobs; if their pleasant efficiency should be replaced by grumpiness, slovenliness and laxity.

Corner cop, street car conductor, filling station attendant, phone girl, lunchroom waitress, man-at-the-next-desk, apartment house janitor, mailman, store clerk—all together, they could ruin your day beyond repair; in a week they could drive you crazy.

We don't have millions to give away when we die, and even if we did few of us would give them as this San Francisco did. But it won't hurt us to remember that we carry those debts with us.

Medieval "Progress"

AN interesting sidelight on the state of modern civilization is provided in a current bulletin published by the Building Trades Employers' Association of New York.

Discussing structural design for New York buildings, this bulletin remarks that architects henceforth must take into account the chance that their buildings will be subjected to airplane bombings. New buildings must have "stronger roofs"—both as a defense against bombs, and to serve as mounts for anti-aircraft guns in case of need.

The association is undoubtedly correct in saying that this is a factor no New York architect can afford to ignore in the future; but what a commentary on the way in which modern civilization fails to provide ordinary peaceful security! We seem to be back in the middle ages once more, when houses had to be built for defense as well as for shelter. It is a profoundly dismaying thought.

mostlly cagey, cautious. But here was money actually in hand, far more than he needed. He could go ahead, at once, with a project that had intrigued him for almost a year. His scientist's mind was clicking delightedly now. He gave immediately thought to organizing a party which would explore the cliff dwelling in the Montezuma mountain range.

"We'll need a cook," he reasoned. "I'll go see old Three Horses."

Three Horses was an Indian who seemed to have lived forever, and who loafed eternally now around the village of Blanco Canyon. He was wise in his way.

"Need good cook," Bob Barry explained, patiently. "You kitchen me good cook, Three Horses. Savvy? Cook beans, bread, meat, everything outdoors. Me go long camping trip. You savvy? You send me Indian who can cook white man's grub. All right?"

Three Horses wouldn't be rushed. He had to be primed with a cigar, a bag of candy, and the purple silk neckerchief which Bob wore jauntily around his collar. But in the end he promised.

"Have the cook come to my shack over there," Bob pointed toward the distant hills. "And next time I see you, it's a dollar for you. Good cook. White man's grub. Hurry."

Bob next thought to begin buying provisions, but he decided to wait. Maybe this fellow Lane would have some ideas. At any rate he would be the financial backer, with a half interest in the entire proceeding. Courtesy at least demanded that he be consulted, since he was due so soon.

Bob spent the remaining hour wondering what sort of fellow Lane would be. His letter sounded a trifle—well, youngish. Hope the man isn't a dudish type. Or spoiled rich. That wouldn't do so well in the outdoors. Bob wanted a partner who could work up as much energy as well as an enthusiasm for this exploration trip. That old cliff dwelling—a remarkable prehistoric castle up 600 feet on the sheer side of a rock wall—was probably the most important ruin in North America. It would take long, lonely weeks, but Bob felt that he might excavate it thoroughly and solve the age-old problem of what became of the cliff people. They were, indeed, a forgotten race, a lost kingdom. No scientist knew what became of them. Any scientist would gain fame and wealth if he could learn the answer. It fascinated Robert Wilson Barry, called Bob.

Dust down the highway heralded the coming of the motor bus, on time. Bob walked to the postoffice, where it would stop. The driver threw out a bag of mail, and stood by the door to assist a passenger out. Bob strained to catch a first glimpse of his man, M. M. Lane.

No man got off, however. Bob felt left down. He'd have to wait until next Saturday now, and he had been thoroughly aroused about it all. His face turned long in disappointment.

But then the lone passenger, a girl, came up to him. "Pardon me," she addressed Bob, "but is there a hotel? The town is much smaller than I expected."

A suspicion instantly struck Bob! He glared at her, almost fiercely. He flumed with his hat. "You—you—" he stammered, "What's your name?"

She smiled, rather beautifully but in amused surprise too. "Why, it's Lane. I'm Mary Melissa Lane. I am looking for a Dr. Barry, my business partner."

Chief of Bureau

have an easy time of it. I sent two men out to that address on the envelope . . .

The present residents knew nothing about the former tenant, Mr. Charles Craig, other than that . . . "I could brain him," the housewife said, "for scribbling all over the walls in the hall and his room. We haven't gotten all the scratches off yet."

The Skip Tracers Co. men took a look at the scratches. They were telephone numbers—some criss-crossing, some illegible, all written in haste. Painstakingly, they noted each number, and then went back to the office to call each until connected with one of Craig's pals.

"I'm an old friend of Charlie's and I want to see him—can you tell me where he is?" asked the sly operative.

"Sure thing—Charlie's at Ninth Street, Apartment 36."

And, thus, "Doodling" had trapped the child-deserter.

Habits and Hobbies Are Give-Aways

Mr. Eisenberg has found that it's little things like this which usually lead to the eventual discovery of the almost 1,000,000 persons who disappear in the U. S. each year.

"Descriptions aren't much help in chasing a skip," says Mr. Eisenberg. "A man can easily change his appearance by growing a beard, or snipping one off, or by putting on specs, or taking them off. And a woman, armed with cosmetics and lipstick and such, can change her looks even more easily."

So it's the little habits and hobbies of the hunted that help the hawkishhunts. An insatiable appetite for pork tenderloin with chili sauce once trapped a fugitive business fraud, and Skip Tracers once brought together two brothers because one of them was a bug on horticulture and couldn't stay out of libraries where he could pore over books about flowers.

Eisenberg, the head of Skip Tracers Co., is still in his early 30's. He was the youngest of 8 children, and born in New York City. He started hunting for people when he was 14, when he tried to find a couple of rich uncles over in Europe.

Sadly enough, Mr. Eisenberg, who has reunited husbands and wives, brothers and sisters, mothers and sons, hasn't been able to find his uncles yet.

Money Trouble Chiefly to Blame

There are, according to the Skip Tracers Co. records, just about four reasons why men—and women and children—leave home.

Unpaid bills are the chief reason. Folks are forever buying things they can't pay for and leaving home either because they are that sort or because they have become suddenly financially embarrassed.

Second in importance is the feeling that "home has become a hell on Earth."

Third is the feeling that "home has become a hell on Earth."

Fourth is the feeling that "home has become a hell on Earth."

Fifth is the feeling that "home has become a hell on they they were never seen nor heard. It is hoped to have some of these ships fly from Virginia for the demonstration.

Radio and newspapers have carried almost daily articles describing the horrors of aerial warfare in Spain and China as squadrons of enemy airplanes would drop out of the skies to release their bomb loads or empty their machine guns on earth-bound troops or helpless women and children.

But regimens of newspaper articles or hours of radio talks could never begin to describe so forcefully as will even 5 minutes of the actual demonstration of such attacks which are to be made by the Pursuit and Attack Groups at Barksdale Field on the afternoon of Sunday, November 21st.

Real live bombs filled with TNT and actual bullets are to be used. This will be no fake demonstration. You will actually see bombs weighing as much as 100 pounds dropped and exploded; you will hear the detonation and feel the earth shake and quiver under your feet.

You will hear the crack-crack-crack of deadly machine guns and see the flaming tracer bullets as whole squadrons of pursuit and attack planes come diving out of the sky upon imaginary enemy troops just as happens daily in Europe and the Orient—but all in perfect safety.

Parachute-Jumping

You will see—for the first time—parachute jumpers trying out a new method of delayed parachute jumping—to fall at foot and as far as they can, before opening their parachute, to escape the fire of enemy pilots, who in these modern wars do not affect the same sportsmanship as in the World war.

The ceremonies will be opened by General Frank M. Andrews, Commander of the GHQ Air Force. He will present the Colombian Trophy for efficiency and the Luke Trophy for aerial gunnery to the winning squadrons. General Andrews is making a special flight from his headquarters at Langley Field, Virginia, for this occasion.

This demonstration is being held for the benefit of charity, the proceeds being divided between the Community Chest, Red Cross and Army Relief organizations. A small charge of 25 cents per person is made with no extra charge for parking. All boy Scouts in uniform and children under 10 years will be admitted free. The bands of Byrd High School and Arkansas A. & M. College will furnish music throughout the program.

Air infantry—soldiers descending behind the enemy's lines by means of parachutes—is a development of the Soviet army strategists.

WHY PAVE STREETS WITH CONCRETE?

- 1 Every street demands a gritty, non-skid surface for the protection of motorists and pedestrians.
- 2 At night you need a pavement with high visibility.
- 3 Safety also calls for a pavement that is free from chuck holes, ruts and bumps . . . and stays that way with minimum maintenance.
- 4 You want a pavement that drains quickly . . . that is easily cleaned and stays clean . . . no depressions to catch dirt.
- 5 You want a pavement that makes the whole neighborhood look modern, prosperous, attractive.

Concrete . . . and only concrete . . . completely meets all of these specifications.

Your Children

By Olive Roberts Barton

Almost Any Book Is Good Choice for Tiny Children.

In suggesting books for our littlest children, it is difficult to list them, because here as elsewhere, the reader is likely to think that the best ones are at the top. Reverse the list, or begin in the middle, and you have precisely the same excellence of selection. As I shall be giving other lists this week for older children, I suggest that this fact be kept in mind.

The newer editions especially suited to the three-to-six age are so numerous that only a fraction can be given here: "Here and Now Story Books," compiled by Lucy Sprague Mitchell (Dutton); "The Doings of Dinkie," by Selskar M. Gunn (Appleton); "Nicomachus and Petunia," by Inez Hogan (Dutton); "Ferdinand," by Munro Leaf (Viking); "Noodle," by Munro Leaf (Viking); "Adventures of Lappy Cushion Tail," by Siera Bosa (Dutton); "Things That Go," by Mary G. Phillips (Rand McNally); "Pete and the Parrot," by Ellis Credle (Nelson Lathrop); "Pete the Pelican," by Rita Kinsin (Lippincott).

Animal Stories and Rhymes

"Fluff, the Little Wild Rabbit," by Lida (Harper); "Busy Bee," by Grave Floyd Hick (Farrar and Rinehart); "Mr. Pumps, the Popsicle Man," by Eleanor H. Wilson (Dutton); "Little Elephant Catches Cold," by Heloise Washburne (Whitman); "Jonathan, Bing and Other Verses," by Beatrice Brown (Oxford); "Babette" (also "Mittens"), "The Traveling Coat" also "Pablo's Pipe," by Frances Eliot (Dutton); "Tooky," by Berta and Elmer Hader (Longmans); "Chee Chee's Brother," by Gertrude Robinson (Dutton); "Ragman of Paris," by Elizabeth Orton Jones (Oxford); "Otto at Sea Land," "Giant Otto," by William Pene DuBois (Viking).

"Four and Twenty Black Birds," by Helen Dean Fish (Stokes); "The Night Before Christmas," by Clement Moore (Beautiful new edition by Harcourt Brace); "The Famous Jimmy," by Enid Blyton (Dutton); "John's Dragon," by Bechdel and Merwin (Oxford); "Catherine Caterpillar," by Jack Munro (Farrar and Rinehart).

About Postmen and Other Creatures

"And to Think That I Saw It On Mulberry Street," by Dr. Seuss (Vanguard).

Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hysteria, the Health Magazine.

Freckles, Caused by Sun's Action, Should Not Be "Peeled" From Skin

This is the 24th of a series in which Dr. Fishbein discusses skin diseases.

(No. 374)

Simply because the skin is on the outside of the body and all of us are inclined to be sensitive about our appearance, we worry much more about changes in the color of pigmentation of the skin than we do about more serious conditions in the body as a whole.

Among the most frequent changes in the pigmentation of the body are freckles, liver spots, colorless spots or vitiligo, and artificial color produced by powder marks, silver deposits or similar foreign substances.

About freckles also there are great numbers of notions and beliefs. It is believed that freckles will disappear by rubbing them with dew that is on clover, by bathing the face with buttermilk, by rubbing them with grass, with grapevine sap and lemon juice, with melon rind or water from an oak stump. None of these cures is really a cure for freckles.

A freckle is a pigmented spot on the skin, usually most likely to be present in the spring and summer than in the winter. Freckles represent a reaction of the skin to the sun and will not appear if the skin is protected from the sun.

Ointments have been discovered which may be rubbed on the skin to keep away the ultraviolet rays of the sun. In such cases the freckles will not appear.

It is possible to remove freckles by using substances on the skin that will peel off the superficial layers. All of these substances are dangerous because they contain poisons and may produce such serious irritation of the skin that the irritation will be much worse than the freckles.

Liver spots, scientifically called chloasma, frequently appear in women without any definite cause. These also represent a deposit of color pigments from the blood in the skin.

They seem to be most often associated with disturbances of glands involved in childbirth. Sometimes they disappear spontaneously.

It is not safe for anyone to attempt to peel away these liver spots by self-treatment, because of the dangerous character of the substances that are used.

NEXT: Vitiligo, colorless spots on the skin.

Triple-Threat Man Likes Quaker Oats

Vernon Huffman, Indiana Player, Favors Oats for Breakfast

As one of the best triple-threat men in the history of football, Vernon Huffman who played with the Indiana University eleven last year, brought honors to his university and the Midwestern Conference, as well. As the spearhead of his team, Huffman helped lead to victory what many sports writers consider the best team that the university has had since 1910. Although Huffman was unable to play football the entire season of 1934 due to a broken leg injury received in practice just 3 days before the season opened, he certainly made up for lost time during the next two years.

His sensational aerial attack were no less spectacular than they were accurate, especially in the most exciting game of the season with I. U.'s traditional rival, Purdue. A head injury in the first quarter of the game kept Huffman from playing until the third quarter. A few minutes after Huffman came on the field he had completed three beautiful passes for touchdowns bringing his team from an apparent scoreless defeat to a 20-20 tie.

Huffman, who won seven letters in sports, learned early in life the important part food plays in building stamina and energy. He chooses as his breakfast cereal hot Quaker Oats with sugar and cream, a cereal rich in Vitamin B for bracing up nerves, digestion and appetite.

Porkers in Good Spirit for Game

Prance Through Snappy Drill Session Wednesday Afternoon

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP)—The University of Arkansas Razorbacks pranced through a snappy out-of-doors drill Wednesday, evidencing excellent team spirit for their inter-sectional clash with George Washington University at Little Rock Saturday.

Coach Fred C. Thomson dropped a new note of cheer by revising previous forecasts that Tackle Randall Stallings and Fullback Ray Cole would not be able to play.

The mentor said Stallings showed considerable improvement with the change in weather and may see action. Cole also was more active Wednesday but Tackle Bob Stout and Halfback Ralph Rawlings appeared as doubtful starters. Rawlings will be used if needed but he is not in top form.

Team Heads for Little Rock
WASHINGTON—George Washington's hard-working Colonials rushed through their last practice at home Wednesday before entraining for Little Rock where they meet the powerful University of Arkansas eleven Saturday. Head Coach Jim Pickett placed special emphasis on pass defense, for George Washington scouts reported the Razorbacks showed the greatest aerial attack they ever had seen against Mississippi last week.

The Colonial squad, headed by Pickett, leaves here Thursday morning at 8:35. Included in the party will be "Botchey" Koch, line coach; Bill Reinhardt, backfield coach; Arch McDonald, radio announcer, who will broadcast the game play-by-play; Graduate Manager Mox Farrington and Bert Green, trainer.

Drill at St. Louis
Practice is scheduled for the Colonials in St. Louis at Washington University Field Friday morning. They arrive there at 7:50 and will practice from 10 until noon. At 2 p. m. they board a train for Little Rock, arriving there at 9:30.

The game Saturday will be practically a homecoming for one member of the squad, big Elmer Hogg, fullback, who resides at Dierks, Ark. Lloyd Berry, end, who now lives at Owens, Va., is a native of the Razorback state. A half dozen others, including Jay Turner of Tulsa, Tipton Holt of Purcell, Okla., Frank Morke of Bryan, Texas, and Duane Keahy of Van, Tex., expect to see members of their families in Little Rock.

The Colonials realize that they're decided underdogs but the spirit of the squad is good. They recall that they upset a heavier favored Razorback team in Washington last fall, 13 to 6, and the major upsets occur on the gridiron every Saturday.

During the World War allied submarines did patrol work in the Strait of Dover, the Baltic and Adriatic seas.

STAR DUST

By LEONARD ELLIS

THE CRIMSON CHARGER
Woodrow Parsons, Hope High School guard and 170 pounds of meanness, is one of the best high school guards we have seen in action all this season.

Parsons has been a mainstay of the Bobcat team for the past three years. He completes his high school career Thanksgiving Day against St. Joseph High School of Dallas.

Parsons, in three seasons as a regular, has a record behind him that has made him valuable to the Bobcat squad.

He plays both guard and halfback and is the extra point getter after touchdowns. He plays his favorite position at guard. He likes it there. It's one of the roughest and toughest spots on a team. The rougher the better for Parsons. That's the way he prefers it.

We are reliably informed that Coach Foy Hammons, veteran of 20 years of coaching, would stake his career—and what a career—that Parsons would make the University of Arkansas team after a year in freshman football.

Parsons is a great blocker. His defensive work is of high quality and very spectacular. Weighing 170 pounds, he is quick on his feet and a hard charger. It hurts when Parsons knifes the line to make a tackle.

Woodrow is a hard worker and is possessed with a fighting spirit. He plays a mean guard. We'll take Parsons as our middleman until somebody better comes along.

Dear Leonard:
Just a few words in praise of the excellent game of football our Bobcats played in the Russellville game.

After a shaky start the Felines "went to town" with a bang. The Goodland Indians are the next victims and our Ochs should make those Indians' wigs warm.

Stone and Masters played excellent ball in the Russellville massacre and Bright was also a "shining light." Bright and Stone are cinches for all-state. I guess those boys eat their Quaker oats regular.

Yours,
"Bobcat Booster."

In speaking of Stone and Masters, it reminds us that both were awarded the homecoming day belt buckles offered by Stewart's Jewelry store to the outstanding lineman and outstanding backfield man in the homecoming day battle with Russellville High School last week.

Stone and Masters were selected by the entire squad as the two players giving the best performance in the Russellville game. They were awarded triple gold-plated belt buckles with a red and white "H" by Edwin Stewart of the Stewart Jewelry firm.

The awards were presented early this week at a meeting of the entire team.

Southwest Arkansas football fans have an added incentive to witness the University of Arkansas-George Washington football game in Little Rock Saturday.

Two former Southwest Arkansas gridders will be in the lineup. But both happen to be in the George Washington lineup. They are Lloyd Berry, 200-pound end, and a former Hope High School star.

The other is Fullback Elmer Hogg, former Dierks, Arkansas, high school player.

After completing his high school career here, Berry enrolled at Arkansas college, Batesville, where he starred before entering George Washington.

If you like them, here is some more happenings on the gridiron:

Minnesota tried a forward-lateral pass play against Nebraska in 1932. The Minnesota end caught the forward, but was tackled by a Cornhusker so that his arms were pinned to his sides. The ball bounded along the ground, but was scooped up by Jack Manders, who made the touchdown which kicked Nebraska, 7-6.—By Dana Xenophon Bible, Texas.

*****
It happened in a Georgetown-Detroit game. The ball-carrier was nailed by two tacklers from opposite sides, but didn't fall. Before the whistle was blown, a halfback rushed by the trailing ballcarrier, snatched the ball from his hands and sprinted 50 yards for a touchdown through secondaries who had relaxed their vigilance, thinking the play had ended.—By Lou Little, Columbia.

*****
In 1932, U. C. L. A. trailed Oregon, 6-7, with 30 seconds to play. U. C. L. A. quarterback Mike Frankovich intercepted an Oregon pass on the U. C. L. A. 7-yard line. He had presence of mind to call time out for a huddle.

When the play started, Mike faded behind his own goal, passed to Raymond Liversy on the 35. Liversy ran 65 yards for the winning touchdown as the gun sounded.—By William Henry Spaulding, U. C. L. A.

In the 1926 Colgate-Navy game, Colgate led, 7-6. The Red Raiders seemed about to go over for another touchdown from the 2-yard line. "Whitely" Lloyd, Navy end, picked up a Colgate fumble and ran 98 yards for a touchdown. Navy won, 13-7.—Lieut. Harry Judson Hardwick, Navy.

*****
The largest score ever made by a Duke team was the 96-0 victory over Furman in 1931. (Duke was then Trinity college.) Touchdowns counted four points, and kicks afterward, two. Every man on the Duke team made a touchdown, the center being called back and allowed to run with the ball on the occasion.

*****
Before Central university merged with Centre college, rivalry between the grid teams of the two institutions was so intense that, in 1890, authorities of both schools decided the game should be played on a neutral field. So strong was the feeling that before the match started, two brothers who played on opposite teams had a fist fight on the field.

king and queen like to dance but a military string orchestra usually has provided the music at palace functions.

Their majesties set another precedent by decreasing that masculine guests should wear evening dress with knee breeches instead of glittering, but uncomfortable, uniforms.

Another precedent for Buckingham palace was set when the guests occupied the dance floor at the same time as their majesties. It was the former custom for the members of the royal family to dance first, while the guests looked on. The orchestra played waltzes, foxtrots, and one-steps, but no tango or rumba numbers.

Insects destroy crops worth $35,000,000 a year, a one-tenth of the total crop in England.

Indians Have Won

have an outstanding star on the team, the biggest man weighing 175 pounds. He is Jenner, left tackle. The right tackle, Tommubett, weighs 170 pounds. In the backfield Coach Pierce has Samuel, 160-pound fullback, who is the "war-horse" of the team.

Hope Team In Shape
Coach Foy Hammons said Thursday afternoon that his team would be in good physical condition with the exception of Edward Aslin. Aslin has recovered from the shoulder injury received in the Blytheville game, but in practice this week, sprang an ankle.

It was first believed that Hugh Reese, end, would be a doubtful starter because of a knee injury, but Hammons said his condition had improved and that he would be in the lineup.

The team went through a scrimmage session Wednesday afternoon. Rain will probably keep the squad inside Thursday.

Eight to Finish
It will be the next-to-the-last game for eight members of the squad. The entire line, Jewell, Keith, Parsons, Stone, Quimby, Reese and Ramsey are playing their last season. It will also be the final season for John Williams.

son, husky reserve tackle. In the backfield, Vasco Bright, see quarterback, is playing his last season as a high school griddler. Tickets will go on sale Friday morning at Hope Confectionery and Jacks Newsstand.

Premature Birth in Airliner Crash

Grand Duchess Suffers Double Fate in Belgian Disaster

LONDON, Eng.—(AP)—Grand Duke Ludwig von Hesse bei Rhein and his English grand duchess began a tragic journey Wednesday with a trip to Ostend to identify members of his family who were killed Tuesday in an air crash.

The late Grand Duchess Cecile, his sister-in-law and one of the victims, was disclosed Wednesday to have given birth prematurely to a child when the crash occurred. The baby's body rested Wednesday night in the arms of the mother in the Ostend hospital where also lay the flower-wreathed bodies of the grand duke's mother, his brother and the latter's two sons.

Six other persons died when the airliner which was bearing Ludwig's relatives to London for his wedding crashed in a fog in Belgium.

New Ford Trucks Put on Display

Hope Auto Co. in First Showing of New Models Thursday

Tom McLarty, manager of Hope Auto company, announced Thursday that the new Ford trucks and pick-ups had arrived and were on display.

The trucks have a new and improved motor, better brakes, more room in the cab, safety glass windshield and are sturdier built. The trucks are larger and longer than last year's models.

Several members of the local Ford firm will go to Memphis Friday to view the new Ford passenger car, Mr. McLarty said the Ford passenger cars would be displayed here soon.

Low of 26 Degrees Here

The Fruit and Truck Branch Experiment Station reported a low temperature of 26 degrees for the 24-hour period ending at 7 a. m. Thursday. The recording was the lowest of the fall season, 28 degrees being the previous low which was registered on October 23.

Explains How He Got Long Pants

Freddie Bartholomew Steps Out With Smile of Satisfaction

By FREDDIE BARTHOLOMEW HOLLYWOOD I finally have my much desired long pants. Of course, my Aunt Cissie naturally didn't want me to go into long pants, feeling, as most mothers do, that her boy will be a man when he goes out of short pants.

Cissie postponed the time when I should leave short pants for so long that I decided to take matters into my own hands.

I might mention at this time that the publicity department was also somewhat against my going into long pants, because the studio wished to keep me the little English boy wearing short pants. Perhaps this was done so that there would be something about me which would be a little unusual to Americans. What with the publicity department against me, and Cissie against me, I didn't have a chance in the world, so I decided to use strategy.

Aunt Amazed I proceeded to make an agreement with Cissie that I would wear short pants for a year, unless long ones were given to me. I then took my story and agreement to Col. W. H. Nebbett, our attorney, who immediately bought me some longies.

When I walked into Cissie (I say walked, but I was really strutting like a drum major) her face was a study of mixed amazement and sadness. I reminded her of the clause in our agreement and bared that they had been given to me. So she couldn't do anything about it.

Cinched His Victory I think, although I am not sure, that I have almost fully reconciled her to the fact that I am now definitely and officially in long pants, and that as for our agreement, she can't do a thing about it!

As for myself I made sure of my victory by quickly getting rid of all my short pants.
